Government electrical contract worksheet

Record evidence gaps and responsibilities before committing people, price or cash.

One requirement per worksheet

Use the current official requirement and its amendments. This worksheet records questions and evidence; it does not decide eligibility, electrical safety or payment rights.

Keep the gates separate

A partner lead is not a committed partner or an automatic cure for a mandatory condition. A license, technician certification, safety course and Qualified Person evidence answer different questions. Source facts, a recorded profile recommendation and your own decision remain distinct.

Cash and extra work

Map payroll, supplier terms, inspection/acceptance, proper invoicing and actual payment conditions. Do not assume an advance or unconditional 30-day payment. In the dated Cleveland case, extra work requires contracting-officer approval and funding; additional repair/replacement also requires an approved purchase order before work.

Your next move

Name the unresolved gate, the person who will resolve it, the source or buyer clarification needed and the next proof. Record why the next move is within your company's actual route and delivery capacity.

Your pursuit record

Record evidence and unknowns. Each field accepts multiple lines; keep the original blank worksheet for your next requirement.
